

DIXON PUBLIC LIBRARY
DISTRICT LIBRARIAN'S REPORT
1/25/08 – 2/25/08

LIBRARY PROGRAMS / SERVICES / OPERATIONS

- The City has completed repair work on the E 8th street sewer line, which should mean that the Library's pumps can stop pumping.
- Roof leaks in the Children's Room have been fixed by the roofing contractor, who respected property lines and is ten years into a 30 year warranty.
- All of the Library's gutters were cleaned out, and new screening was securely attached. All roof surfaces were blown clean as well, and downspouts were reconnected.

SNAP AND NCLS OPERATIONS

- MCLIS (North Bay Cooperative Library System) has met with the Marin Marin Valley Library System (MMVLS) and the North State Cooperative Library System (NSCLS) for a planning process for joint programs, services, training and activities on February 6. From that meeting came a recommendation to merge MCLIS and MMVLS (and possibly also NSCLS). The NSCLS Board approved such an action, which could not happen any sooner than July 1, 2009.
- The first draft of the SNAP budget indicates a 2.4% increase. The same is true for the NCLS budget.

COMMUNITY OVERSIGHT

- I met with newly appointed Library Commission member Shane Taber for her orientation on 2/13/08.
- I attended the annual meeting of the Council of Independent Special Library Districts in Island Park, Co. on 2/18/08.

Over 100 children have autism, or another 1.5 million Americans suffer from this developmental disorder, according to a study by the Centers for Disease Control.

Autistic patients struggle with communicating and interacting with their peers. Many even have seizures or unusual behavior. The cause depends on symptoms. Most children are diagnosed before the age 3.

 Another major issue is the location of the Veterans Building. I have been coming to quite a debate. There is a legal access to the rear of existing building. My intention is bring the State County would provide a new front for the Veterans. The process is under way and the City is quite involved as they may look for a new site as well. This process could bring together Solano County and the University District in an effort to develop projects. Development of the City and the State Department Agency would have to approve such process. This could be quite an accomplishment based on how many of us have tried to do this.

What is the General Plan Update Process? It is a process to me at this point is to what is going on, but quite a wide range of City or County performance. It is a process of General Plan.
 The process is a way of what this does to the land use process

 All this good machinery is a lot of work. The decision makers months by Roberto Salinas, who resigned from his post as superintendent of the district Sept. 28, 2009.

Albreton said Dixon threatened to sue to pay Salinas through June 30, 2009. However, she said "no suit can be filed while Salinas was in office in 2009" as part of a three-year contract with the district through June of 2009.

When he decided to resign, Albreton said he negotiated an agreement with the board of trustees that would end his contract in June of this year. It's a last paycheck, he estimated June 30.

"It's important to have a contract he had a legal contract with Dixon Unified," Albreton said. "We have to pay him. We can't have said to pay him for another 18 months. Also, his salary was budgeted in the work year, so it does not add any other responsibilities. It was in the budget when they built it and the trustees approved it."

The retirement did not take long, Albreton said. Salinas was appointed by State Superintendent Jack O'Connell to be executive director of the state school council, the council funded by the Bill Gates Foundation, focuses on students in preschool through the sixth-grade grades and how the state can improve student achievement.

Albreton said Salinas's resignation is not settling well with some of his stakeholders. Dixon Unified Trustee Steve Collins is just one person who is not happy with the idea of Salinas moving to a private company work.

"When he resigned, he threatened his retirement. I think on his word that he was really retiring," she said. "I am disappointed, shocked and dismayed that instead of retiring to some working job in the state of California in Jack O'Connell's office and getting his pension as some one from the state and one from us."

So how exactly did the school district "miscalculate" more than $1 million? Albreton said in the response to the Tribune that was optimized to save space that the employee's salary and retirement plan were substantial.

Susan Dunn, the health services officer who resigned in November after the deficit budget was approved, also estimated the revenue for the 2007-08 school year. Albreton explained she also did not properly calculate the impact on the district because those retired costs were not included in the budget that the board of trustees approved in July.

Then, of course, there is the funding equation, which is when the state of budgeting is finalized each year from at least each school district. Some are funded from the state based on enrollment, and when the numbers are down, that's the revenue.

Declining enrollment was the issue that several districts across the valley are facing, Albreton said.

"Over 200,000 in the Unified School District, Inman, is the fastest growing school district in any local California but the whole United States, is now suffering from declining enrollment," she added.

Declining enrollment also plays a role in several closures. Since not closing a school is inevitable even if the district is not faced with budget woes, Vacaville Unified, for example, has had to close three schools in six years due to the drop in students.

Albreton stressed that the district still has to consider public opinion for teachers, students, parents and community members before a decision is made on whether a school is to close. At this time, the only two schools being considered are Anderson Elementary and Silverville Elementary, because those are the oldest schools in the district.

Other issues Albreton addressed include more on-site high school activities, school library closures and reduction of health technicians.

People throughout the community have stepped forward to offer assistance and fundraising ideas, and Albreton encourages parents to attend the Tuesday school board meeting, where the topic will be fully addressed by the trustees.

"It's very important for the community around the district during this challenging time," she said.

The new superintendent, Dr. Thomas Elementary School, submitted his notice to resign effective June 30.

"Unfortunately, my personal working situation makes it very difficult to do this position," she wrote. "It is readily apparent that working is going to prove to be any way in the foreseeable future."

Though the resignation was not on the agenda for the Thursday meeting, District Superintendent Dr. David will have some discussions as possible containing opportunities to raise money for the district.

"The danger is that people do not open their mouths and become silent request for money," he said. "We need to be very careful that whatever suggestion we want to do is right."

Dixon Unified's block budget situation is the main the only topic that will be discussed at Thursday's meeting.

Business will begin the meeting by receiving an update on the state schools to determine what services are being provided by the district of curriculum and instruction.
